

What To Expect When Hiring Nick Rinehart

Nick Rinehart is a skilled communicator with extensive experience shaping conversations and targeting audiences. But, due to the time and cost of evaluation, potential employers may not fully grasp what he offers. This infographic will help you get to know Nick a little better.

Productivity

45,000

pages read, per year

1,500

pages edited, per year

225

pages written, per year

That's the equivalent of reading Leo Tolstoy's War and Peace 38 times.

Multitasking

Nick juggles his own research projects with those of 23 pupils. With ease, he writes about 20th-century literature, edits research writing (on topics as diverse as healthcare, waste management, and ground-water contamination), and leads a discussion on the principles of effective argumentation, all in the same day.

Juggler of Projects

Expert Note Taker and Condenser

Experienced Proofreader

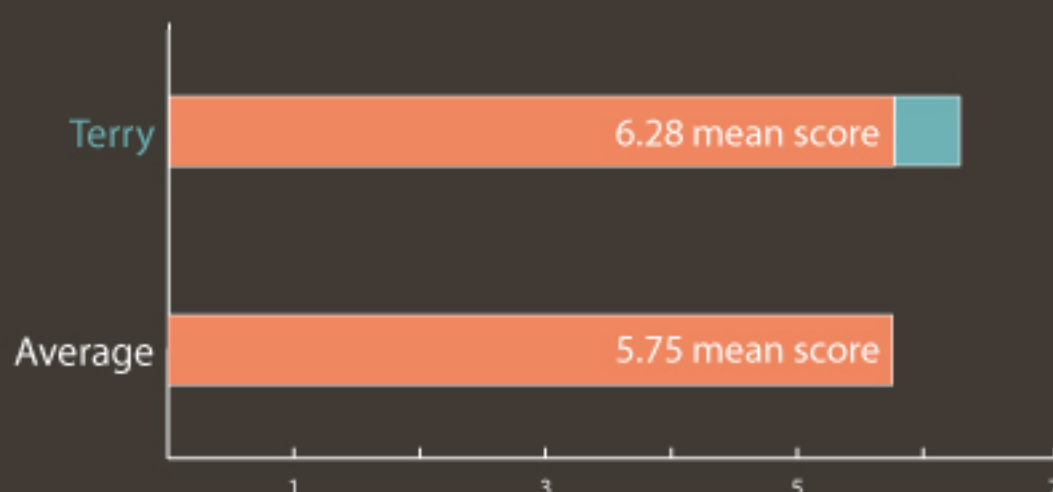

Enthusiastic Learner

Professional Communicator

Rave Reviews

Across three years of standardized data, Nick outperforms UC-Irvine's writing instructors, some of the most dedicated, intelligent, and hard-working folks around, by about 9%.

"Give him a raise, or give me death!"

-Student Evaluation, Winter 2009

"I can't say enough positive things about Nick, because he took a difficult topic that is considered dreadful... and made it fun."

-Student Evaluation, Spring 2010

By The Numbers

2,941

of photos taken, 2011

34,079

of song listens since 2004 on last.fm

5

dozens of cookies baked, 2011

7 out of 10

final standing in 2011 fantasy football league

72

height, in inches

Will help shorter workers get supplies from the high shelf.

0

of cavities in teeth, lifetime

Education

$176,000+

cumulative cost of education

Assuming a retirement age of 65, Nick's employers will reap the benefit of $4,632

invested yearly

in deadline-driven problem solving, analytical reasoning, and creative thinking.

Let's work together!

<scanned_signature.png>